Title of Course: Laminate Language: Decoding the Aesthetic Dialogue of Laminate Design

Faculty: Dr. Rohit Shetty

Type of Course: Workshop & Lecture

Description of course: With the evolution of ceramic materials and adhesive protocols, laminate veneers have become one of the most sought-after restorative options in aesthetic dentistry. However, creating restorations that are both beautiful and biologically sound requires more than technical execution – it demands an understanding of the subtle language of anatomy, proportion, and precision.

Laminate Language explores the harmony between form and function through a comprehensive, clinically grounded approach to veneer restorations. From minimal and thoughtful preparations to the selection of appropriate materials, temporization, and adhesive workflows, this course will help clinicians develop an intuitive understanding of how to "speak" esthetics fluently through their restorations.

Through an engaging combination of lecture and live demonstration, participants will gain essential clinical strategies, nuanced design insight, and practical confidence in delivering restorations that are thin, thoughtful, and timeless.
